TRANSIT PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

TRANSIT STANDARDS

OPERATIONS

The following Transit standards are used as measures of progress toward meeting the transit objectives identified in the Policy Element.

Countywide Standards

A. Accessibility

1. In urbanized areas, at least 70% of the population of each city and/or Census Designated Place should be within ¼ mile or a five minute walking distance from a fixed transit route, or 100% of the populations should be served by a general public Dial-A-Ride service.
2. Transit services should be provided between major activity centers.
3. In urbanized areas in Census Tracts, where there is a concentration of transit dependant persons¹, 90% of dwelling units should be with ¼ mile of fixed transit routes or be fully served by door-to-door demand responsive transit for the elderly and disabled.
4. Vehicles equipped with wheelchair lifts or ramps shall be available to disabled persons wherever transit service is provided.
5. Transit operators which use State or Federal funds shall operate in conformity to all appropriate laws requiring transit services to the disabled (required documents showing such conformity shall be available to StanCOG).
6. Door-to-door demand responsive transit is provided in urban areas for all elderly or disabled persons.

B. Convenience

1. Maintain average operating speeds for fixed route services as follows:

Urbanized area:	13 miles per hour
Non-urbanized areas:	18 miles per hour
2. In urbanized areas, design routes and schedules to efficiently serve a maximum number of persons.
3. No more than 30% of passengers should be required to transfer in fixed-route systems. Where transfer rates between lines within the same transit system exceed 30%, potential for providing direct routing should be investigated.
4. Provide timed transfers at all transfer points on fixed route systems in urbanized areas.

1 The 2002-03 Unmet Transit Needs Report includes the formula used to identify concentrations of Transit Dependent Persons. The 2003-04 Unmet Transit Needs Report will finalize the locations of those populations.

5. Maximum headway for fixed-route service in urbanized areas should be as follows:

On high demand routes and time periods:	30 minutes
In other cases:	60 minutes

6. Demand-responsive transit should provide the following level-of-service:

(a) Immediate response systems:

- i. Average wait time for immediate response passengers – 30 minutes.
- ii. Average deviation between estimated and actual pick-up time – 10 minutes.

(b) Advance reservation system:

- i. Average deviation between estimated and actual pick-up time – 15 minutes.
- ii. Advance reservation requirements for local general public systems – 2 hours ahead of trip time.
- iii. Advance reservation requirements for intercity service – 7 days ahead of trip time.
- iv. Advance reservation requirements for local elderly/disabled systems – two hours ahead of trip time.

7. Designate bus stops at all major activity centers in urbanized areas and/or where boarding passengers exceed 50 per day.

8. Other fixed route service should maximize the efficiency of one-directional service.

C. Reliability

1. Schedule adherence.

Buses should not depart earlier than time indicated on fixed schedule. Arrivals more than five minutes late should be minimized.

2. Programmed trips and/or vehicles.

- a) 100% of scheduled trips should be provided on fixed-route systems. Where temporary vehicle shortages exist, preference should be given to routes serving transit-dependent areas.
- b) 100% of programmed vehicles should be provided on an average daily basis in demand-responsive systems.

D. Comfort

1. A seat should be available for every passenger except during peak hours.

3. Provide passenger shelters at designated bus stops in urbanized areas where boarding passengers total more than 75 per day or where exposure to weather conditions is particularly severe.

4. Equip all vehicles with air-conditioning to provide an acceptable level of comfort during summer months, and heating during winter months.

E. Performance

1. Attempt to meet the productivity recommendations included in the annual Transit Productivity Analysis.

2. Achieve and maintain appropriate fare box ratios. (Shown on the Table titled Performance Standards)

3. New systems should meet the above performance standards after the second full fiscal year of operation.
4. Expansions of existing transit services should meet one-half the above performance standards during the first year of operation.

F. Marketing

1. The following information should be made available to transit users of each transit service operating in the county:
 - Route or service area, and timetable information, including fare schedules.
 - A user guide explaining the system or service and how to use it.
 - Telephone information service.
2. Special efforts should be made to promote and/or publicize the transit service to the market segment at which the service is directed (e.g., elderly and handicapped) or to market segments with rider ship potential.
3. Each transit service operated within the County should make efforts to make information regarding its service available to users of private intercity transit services (e.g., Greyhound) and their operators.
4. Each transit operator should establish an Internet site describing their services.

G. Management

1. The following basic information is essential for transit system management and should be collected on a monthly basis:
 - Total passengers carried, by route.
 - Revenue passengers carried, by route.
 - Vehicle hours of service provided, by route.
 - Vehicle miles of service operated, by route.
 - In-service vehicle breakdowns.
 - Passenger complaints.
2. The following information should be assembled at least semi-annually and in response to passenger complaints and/or driver reports of operational problems:
 - Schedule adherence, by route (fixed routes).
 - Response times (Dial-A-Ride).
 - Pick-up time deviation (Dial-A-Ride).
 - Service Refusals (Dial-A-Ride).
3. Buses should be considered for replacement according to schedule included in the Federal Transit Administration Circular 9030.1a.
 - The number of spare buses (i.e., those not normally used during peak hour operation) should not exceed 20% of the total fleet size.
4. Information on user characteristics and attitudes should be updated every 3-5 years by the use of on-board surveys.
5. Maintenance, which is an important element of management, should be documented in a maintenance plan.
